

Not a component library.

A palette with jobs.

The site grew on Inter, stone tokens, and shadcn buttons. Those are a chassis, and they are what every Next.js portfolio already is. This document keeps the mark, the six colours you actually liked, and the rainbow rule — and gives each of them a job. Inter and the bordered button matrix are retired.

Three systems, three rules.

Linear, Stripe, and Vercel publish less than they use. The restraint is the system. Each rule below is borrowed, then applied to this palette.

Linear

LINEAR.APP/BRAND

Two published colours: Mercury white and Nordic gray. Indigo is for focus and selection, not decoration. The name is a rule: one word, capital L.

One job per colour. Six hues stay, but only citrus may act. The others wait for the rule.

Stripe

SIGNAL, THEN AN EDGE

One signal colour, a navy ground, and a gradient used as a signature edge rather than chrome. Clear space is specified. Type stays light.

The spectrum is an edge, like that gradient. It runs along a card, an OG image, a CV header. It does not fill buttons.

Vercel

SYMBOL VS LOGOTYPE

Logotype when there is room, symbol when there is not. Clear space equals the symbol height. Misuse is a written list.

Wordmark first. The B/J monogram only at 16–32px. Clear space stays a quarter of the mark. Misuse is a page, not a feeling.

Five rules. The rest follows.

01 Paper, not white.

The ground is warm paper, #F7F4EF, not #FFFFFF and not Tailwind stone. Pure white made the confection colours look stuck on. Paper makes citrus, lilac, and seafoam belong to the same object.

02 Citrus is the only signal.

Links, the sweep, focus, and the primary button are citrus. If everything is highlighted, nothing is. Lilac, seafoam, orchid, and yellow do not get buttons.

03 The spectrum is a rule.

Six hues, one 4px bar, in this order: citrus, sunny, seafoam, orchid, lilac, plum. It sits at the foot of a card, an OG image, or a CV header. Three places. Not a background texture.

04 Type leads. Borders leave.

Cards are type on paper, with the rule at the foot. No 1px stone border, no hover-that-raises-the-border, no shadow. That was the shadow tell.

05 Say the specific thing.

The Parole Board hearing system, a motorcycle test in Porirua, a seasons project. Those sentences are the brand. “Full-stack web developer” is the category, and it goes small.

Ink, paper, signal, spectrum.

Navy and paper do the work. Citrus points. The other five appear in the rule, and one of them may mark a project. Never all of them in one component.

PAIRING

- Body text is navy on paper. Never lilac, yellow, or seafoam.
- Citrus type is allowed at 16px and above, on paper only. Buttons use paper text on a citrus fill.
- Plum is the dark ground: paper text, seafoam for one secondary line.
- A project may take one spectrum colour as its label. Seasoned takes seafoam. It does not recolour the page.
- Flat bands only. Do not blend the bar into a gradient.

Newsreader for the name. Outfit for the work.

Inter is the face of the chassis you are leaving. Newsreader is a news serif: straight, a real italic, no soft axis. It can set the name and a pull quote. Outfit stays geometric and plain, and does not pretend to be Inter.

Wordmark first. Monogram when it must be small.

The wordmark is the name in Newsreader, regular, not bold. It is not letterspaced. It does not take a colour from the spectrum. Navy on paper, paper on navy, paper on plum.

THE B/J MONOGRAM

The existing single-colour monogram stays. It is the favicon, the app icon, and the 20px mark in a header when the wordmark will not fit. It is not redrawn in Newsreader, and it is not filled with the spectrum.

|                    |                                                                                                        |
|--------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Clear space | At least a quarter of the mark height, on every side. Already true. Keep it.                           |
| Colour      | Navy, paper, or white. One colour. Strokes are never different hues.                                   |
| Small size  | The 16px favicon uses the pixel-hinted master. Do not let the browser scale the large SVG down to 16.  |
| Lockup      | Mark, then a 12px gap, then the wordmark in Newsreader at 15–18px. One line. No tagline in the lockup. |
| Do not      | Rotate it, outline it, put it on citrus, or combine it with another logo.                              |

Plain verbs. Local nouns.

Two buttons. One card. One link.

The variant matrix — default, secondary, outline, ghost, link, destructive, each in rest, hover, focus, disabled — was documentation of a library. A personal site needs three controls.

BUTTONS

PRIMARY CITRUS FILL, PAPER LABEL INVERSE NAVY FILL QUIET HAIRLINE, RARE

Radius is 2px, not shadcn's rounded-md. No ghost, no outline-as-default, no destructive red unless something is actually being deleted. Hover darkens the fill by mixing 8% navy. Focus is a 2px citrus offset outline, not a gray ring.

LINK

All projects Navy text. Citrus rule, 3px below the baseline. No arrow unless it leaves the site.

CARD

The same three moves, everywhere.

SITE HEADER

OPEN GRAPH · 1200 × 630, SCALED

The bar is the signature, and it is wired into the image. One spectrum label in the corner — Portfolio, Writing, or Project — in that project's colour. Not a rainbow pill.

CV AND EMAIL HEADER

Dark mode, if it ships, is plum #3A1E66 as the ground and paper as the text. It is not Tailwind stone inverted. Until it ships, it stays out of the public sheet.

Paste this. Then stop adding.

MISUSE

- Do not set body text in Inter on a rebuilt page.
- Do not recolour the monogram with the spectrum.
- Do not use yellow, lilac, or seafoam as text.
- Do not border every card. The rule replaces the border.
- Do not show a dark theme that is not switched on.
- Do not put Kia ora in the nav.
- Do not blend the bar into a gradient.
- Do not add an eighth accent.

Fonts: Newsreader and Outfit from Google Fonts, IBM Plex Mono for meta. Load Newsreader italic. Do not add a third text face, and do not fall back to Fraunces.

What this is comparable to: a one-person studio sheet, at the stage where Linear had a mark and a colour rule but before the ornament was deleted. It is not a product design system. It does not need to become one. The next edit is subtraction.
